

CHANGES AT THE THEATRES.

THE CASE OF WILLIAM OLSEN.

FOUR YEARS OF SUFFERING RELIEVED AT LAST.

He Had Cataracts, and Fainted His Money Away on Patent Medicines, Like Thousands of Others, Then He Found Out About Doctors McCoy and Wildman, and He Says They Have Relieved Him of All His Trouble.

A new American play entitled "Friends," the author of which is Edward Milton Royle, was submitted for approval before a critical New York audience at evening at the Standard Theatre. While cannot be said that the play was an unqualified success, it was received with much enthusiasm, and its strong points and telling situations gave frequent opportunity for general applause.

The story of the play, which has to do with the strong friendship existing between two young men, a poet and a musician, both of whom are in love with an operatic prima donna, is unfolded in an interesting plot, but the work, though full of striking situations, is unevenly constructed.

The author, who is an actor, assumed the leading role in the absence of E. J. Henley, who was ill for the part, but was presented by illness from playing. The character of Harold Hunting, manager of the Metropolitan Opera-house, which is strongly drawn, was impersonated with great success by Mr. John Glenning. His acting was warmly applauded, especially in the dramatic scene in the third act, where he and Mr. Alden Lyons were recalled with enthusiasm. The scene between Fox, absent from the stage, and O'Keefe made up a trio of features whose charms proved irresistibly attractive.

Hopper was called before the curtain to receive a standing ovation.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

The return of "Wang" to the Broadway

last night was made the occasion of an ovation to be Wolf Hopper and the character of Wang, who had been ill in the lobby was depicted with increasing floral tributes from admiring friends. Hopper was as ponderously ruing

as when he left Fox, absent from the stage, and now his nose is red and he breathes through his mouth. Now I haven't got any trouble anywhere at all,

he says, and I am in a great deal of good.

That's all there is about it."

Doctors McCoy and Wildman make a specialty of the treatment of all chronic diseases, including those of the heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, etc.

They are the only ones who moderate their charges, or, if you will say so, no moderate that they are within the reach of all.

WILLIAM OLSEN.

The same of insects would drop down in my skin and make me break out in hives, and was terribly irritating to stomach. I used to have to take some, and now my nose is red and I am breathing through my mouth. Now I haven't got any trouble anywhere at all,

he says, and I am in a great deal of good.

That's all there is about it."

WINDSOR THEATRE.

A musical extravaganza entitled "The Musical Box" was given at the Windsor Theatre last night. It was evidently constructed simply for the purpose of causing laughter, in which it was quite successful. Henshaw and Tenwick, the stars, are former favorites of the variety stage.

PEOPLES' THEATRE.

"My Colleen," a comedy-drama by James A. Herne, was produced at the People's Theatre last night. Tony Farrell was the star, supported by Jennifer Leland, a clever southerner.

FALL OF PLINY.

The open-air summer spectacle, "Fall of Pliny," will open the season at South Beach, S. L., to-morrow evening. It is said to be an elaborate and magnificent spectacular production.

STABBED IN A SALOON ROW.

A Politician Hurt in a Long Island City Alderman's Place.

In an affray at 8 o'clock this morning in a saloon at Bondet and Jackson avenues, Long Island city, kept by Michael P. Clavin, President of the Long Island City Board of Aldermen, Fireman Charles Jensen stabbed Joseph McKenna, a brother of the ex-Assemblyman, in the abdomen.

Jensen and another fireman, Robert McPhail, had been out all night at a fire. When they entered the saloon they had hard words with McKenna and blows followed.

It was evident that the fight was well begun.

She was killed as "Amy

the Waitress," Miss Andrews, was present.

At the time of the fight, the police were very popular and there is reason to believe that she will achieve her purpose and win success.

It is the opinion of the police that the woman was going to the moral crusade with the purpose of exposing the performances of the theater scene from "Oliver Twist." Mabel Fenton appeared as Nancy and Charles J. Ross as

all the girls.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

Frederick Paulding presented "The Struggle for Life" at the Grand Opera-House last night and it was a very good production. His import was excellent and the piece was staged in a very handsome manner. The vocal effects of the Battery Park in Winter Garden were particularly effective, drawing the admiration of the audience.

The Little Tycoon" drew a full house to the Columbia Theatre. Hartman last evening was presented in a style that pleased the big audience, for almost every one was delighted. E. R. Hartman, the "original" Little Tycoon, was the chief exponent of a basket of flowers. Catherine Lindard was conscientious as Violet. J. Alrich, Lindaray as Avon Barry was in fine voice, and other parts were well filled.

It is well received. "The Grey Mare" will continue until the end of the month. Its popularity is unbroken.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

The Little Tycoon" drew a full house to the Colonial Theatre. Hartman last evening was presented in a style that pleased the big audience, for almost every one was delighted. E. R. TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.

Ex-Senator Andrew's daughter, Pearl, was engaged in a professional burlesque at Tony Pastor's Theatre last night, and scored a hit. She sang and danced like one accustomed to stage work, and the audience was greatly pleased. Her performance was in a soutache way and was well received. She was killed as "Amy the Waitress," Miss Andrews, was present.

It is her ambition to be heard in opera, and there is reason to believe that she will achieve her purpose and win success.

It is the opinion of the police that the woman

was going to the moral crusade with the

theater scene from "Oliver Twist." Mabel Fenton

appeared as Nancy and Charles J. Ross as

all the girls.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Henry Burlesque Company began a new engagement at the Academy of Music last night. Handbags and shapes, women and picturesque scenes and costumes were the features of the burlesque, while William Hartman, the great athlete, gave a very interesting performance.

PATTI'S FAREWELL FESTIVAL.

The advance sale of seats for Patti's farewell musical festival in the Madison Square Garden Amphitheatre to-night, Thursday evening, and Saturday afternoon has been very large. More than 10,000 tickets have been sold, of the biggest audience she ever sung.

Mr. William R. Chapman's chorus of soloists has been in daily rehearsal, and it has been decided to give a concert with orchestra and piano, with the result that a magnificient concert may be expected.

AMBERG'S THEATRE.

Adolph Neudorf's comic opera, "In Four Minutes," after Kander and Ebb's "Merrymakers," and the domestic drama called "The Mackintosh's Way" at Worth's, and the musical museum audience send the remark that the big attraction in the 1000 half hours, while Nero, the Guatemalan singer, caused much laughter by his dancing.

BLUJ THEATRE.

Fanny Rice entered upon the last week of her engagement at the Blujuh Theatre.

She was received with a large audience, and will doubtless attract large audiences all week.

A. S. Lipman appeared as Bill Lewis, burglar, was supported by a very good company.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

"Across the Potomac" entered upon the last week, but one of its stay at Proctor's theatre last night. It has proved to be a genuine success, but will not be repeated to-night.

WORLD'S MUSEUM.

Fanny Herring appears as Miami in the new melodrama, "The Hundreds of the Melodrama," at Doris's Eighth Avenue
